WAVE GLIDER

Those wanting to cruise where jet skis are a faux pas (or positively illegal) can keep on riding with the Quadrofoil. This electric personal-watercraft hydrofoils above water without producing waves or emissions, so is suitable for many marine protected areas. From €15,000, quadrofoil.com

MONACO BURN

The Hôtel Métropole Monte-Carlo has enlisted French Olympian Marc Raquil to help guests work off Christmas paunches. From January, its ESPA spa offers two fitness packages, including personal training from Raquil, massage and a healthy lunch at the Karl Lagerfeld-designed restaurant, Odyssey. metropole.com

COVER STAR

The short Kalita Kaftan from Tatjana Anika may be the ultimate onboard cover-up. Smart enough for a glam lunch, the light, mint-toned fabric will keep you looking and feeling cool in the Caribbean heat. €430, tatjana-anika.com

ASIAN HAVEN

A crop of nine luxury villas has opened at the retreat of Nihiwatu on the Indonesian island of Sumba. This is paradise in paradise – Sumba is virtually untouched by tourism; think sandy floored bathrooms, private pools and open-air, open-plan living. nihiwatu.com

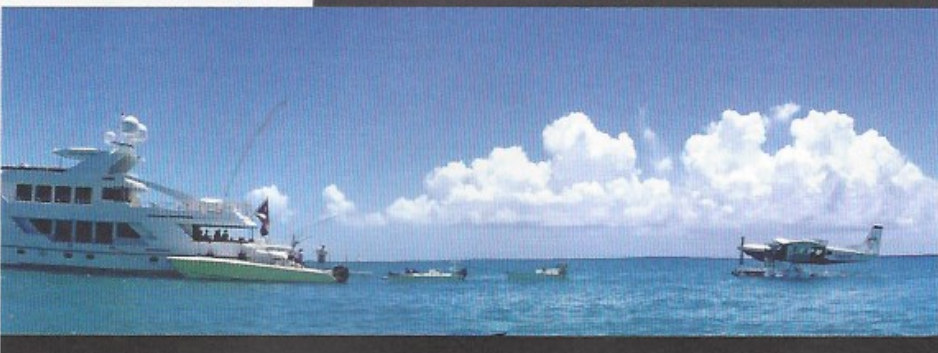

OCEAN ELIXIR

The beauty buffs at Voya harvest mineral-rich seaweeds for their products from the wild Atlantic coast of Ireland. Their new Angelicus Serratus Body Oil also contains anti-oxidant rosehip, vitamin E and fragrant notes of lime and mandarin. Perfect for soothing sun-stressed skin. €37 for 100ml, voya.ie

PLANE EASY

It's about to become much easier to get from the US to yachts in the Caribbean. Tropic Ocean Airways is poised to expand its fleet of six luxury seaplanes with private jet-style interiors. They fly between international airports in Florida and – yes – your boat. No need to dock. flytropic.com
